“ My son, my firstborn, you had your share of trials and tribulations but you had a heart of gold that never stopped giving. I loved you the first time I saw your face and will love you forever....your ma

“ One of the most no nonsense brothers I ever met. When all odds were against me and my family, it was Jason who saved the day. Not only was accessible but was there to support me when my son was in a terrible accident which left him paralyzed. Jason brought me a car to drive, gave me money to eat on. Dude was there anytime he saw me struggling and never asked for anything, not only that he would refuse anything I tried to help him out with always telling me I needed it. One of my only best friends ever. We were going for coffee that morning he never called. I can say without embarrassment that I loved that dude! I'm sure he's going to be waiting for me to go home. Godspeed my Brother.....

Jason you were always doing something for the kids. It was sometimes such a surprise to them, and us too. Always amazing. You were always such a free spirit. We will miss you. Hail the Traveler!
